

Hudson Valley

MAKE IT YOURS

The Hudson Valley borders New York City extending along the majestic Hudson River north for 240 kilometers; from the tip of Manhattan to the state capital of Albany.

Designated a National Heritage Area, the region is steeped in history, natural scenic beauty, cultural arts, and a flourishing culinary and farm markets scene. The valley played a significant role during the Revolutionary War, and was home to two Founding Fathers, as well as the iconic President Franklin D. Roosevelt. The lush landscape gave birth to the country's first wine-making region and inspired America's first arts movement, the Hudson River School of Painters. With a wealth of attractions found nowhere else in the world, the Hudson Valley makes the perfect partner for a trip to the Big Apple.

After spending time in New York City, or returning from upstate towards the Big Apple, why not add a few more days to explore unique and exciting escapes with history and heritage, magnificent gardens, charming villages; a top-notch culinary scene boasting diverse and cultural cuisines; world-class, upscale and boutique shopping and exhilarating outdoor recreation with miles of open spaces and natural wonders.
